

If asking complex business questions of your existing data is proving a prolonged and arduous task, Ardentia Search is here to help

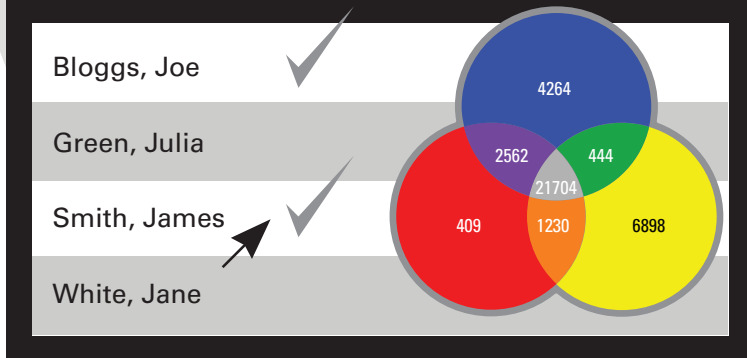

Data Repository

Connect to Information

NetSearch is designed to help organisations unlock and extract information from unconnected data sources and repositories located anywhere within the enterprise. These can include Databases, Content Management Systems, Email, File Servers and the Internet. The NetSearch Repository is optimised for the Web so you can connect with your information quickly and securely from any location with very little impact on your network or the underlying applications.

Query

Search Information

Many individuals in an organisation face barriers when seeking answers to business questions. The legacy applications and data extraction processes and solutions currently in place can be complex and slow. This fast intelligent ad-hoc enquiry tool from Ardentia Search enables you to remove obstacles to accessing your information and drive your business forward. It provides business users with a self service capability to view and query data which has previously been difficult to access.

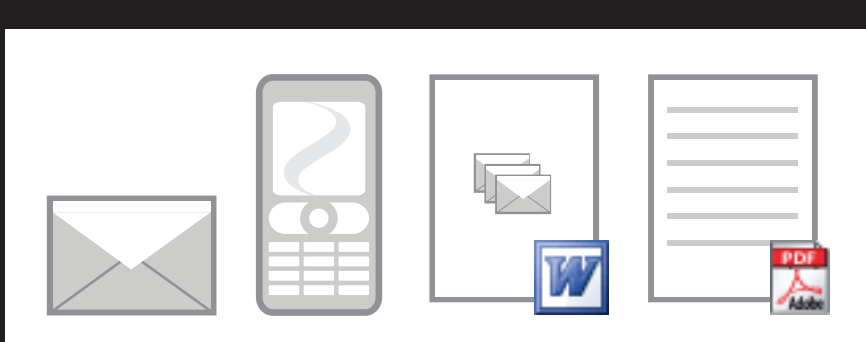

Targeted Results

Analyse Information

This revolutionary technology provides a powerful combination of Business Intelligence and Enterprise Search capabilities within a single, intuitive user interface. This ensures that data mining can be made available to everyone within the organisation. The ability to segment, analyse and target business issues effectively and to locate the most current information in one central repository ensures that all departments have the opportunity to identify issues and opportunities and therefore operate more efficiently.

Deliver

Share Information

Once you have identified the information you require, it needs to be put to good use. Our solution provides seamless links to supporting applications and can be imported to a number of personal productivity applications, including Excel. With our 3rd Party Launcher facility, there is the additional flexibility of allowing the user to link through to an associated application to view the detail behind a search result and update it.

Ardentia Search, you ask the questions, we provide the answers